

Laith

Rushing, he came
My time to claim
He changed everything
And left nothing the same

Laith made me a grandpa
Happy with unbounded love
And gave me a new fame
He called me Jiddo
And changed my name

My daily life was rearranged
To give him the attention he loves
And insure that his wellbeing
Is everyone's duty and aim

All that I have
Is now his to have Without having to have
A valid password
Or a legal claim

He can mine my thoughts
Navigate my life experience
Have a love of a lifetime
That doesn't fade or wane

Whenever I see him
He gets excited
I get excited
Take him to places he likes
Help him inspect the cars
Carry him on my shoulders
And play his favorite game

It's rather a shame
That I must travel so often
And miss so much of him
As new words on his lips are born
It makes traveling less enjoyable
And rather insane
With no one, but myself to blame

Loving and missing are the same
Two faces of a passionate feeling
Once you have it, you can't disclaim

Like lighting a fire in a forest
It's so easy to start
But so hard to tame

A grandson is a sailing love boat
That takes you faraway places
Inspires you to live life once again
Helps you discover a new meaning of love
And gives love a new name

It awakens passion in the heart
Imagination in the brain
Excitement in the eye
And makes life
Never, ever the same
