

It's not Fair

It's not fair
My loving woman said
To be here lonely
And you're lonely there
When loneliness is a broken boat
That takes you nowhere

To walk alone in the darkness
Looking for places you love
When no one is there
To listen to your heartbeat
Share your pain and dreams
And sail with you everywhere

Yes, my dearest friend
Life is never fair
When you're separated
From people you love
And for whom you truly care

When you long so much for a kiss
A hug and a warm smile
To cool a hot summer day
Fill the emptiness of the night
And make you fly high in the air

Only when love and joy
And people you like and adore
And happy memories are there
That living becomes so beautiful
And life special and fair

So, darling
Let our imagination have a busy day
Dream of a magical way
And plan a wonderful, exciting fair
To hug, kiss, sing and dance
Feel the joy of togetherness
Treasure the memories of the day
And forever share

Love is the holy spirit of happiness
That conveys fairness and justice
It makes the worshiped and worshiper only one
And unites all dreams for times to come
